

HAITI AT A GLANCE

On January 12, 2010 a magnitude 7.0 earthquake struck Haiti, killing more than 300,000 people and displacing more than a million others. In October 2016, Hurricane Matthew devastated this already-fragile country, killing 500 people, displacing 175,000 others, and increasing the ever present needs of this impoverished nation.

Forward Edge teams will get to serve some of the most vulnerable children and families hit hardest by Hurricane Matthew in a small community called Vernet. Vernet is located just outside the city of Les Cayes in the southern region of Haiti. It is home to approximately 3,000 people, some of whom are native to Vernet, and others who've recently fled from Les Cayes to the community seeking relief from the hurricane.

Life in this area is very difficult for children and families as poverty has been intensified by the complete devastation from the hurricane. In addition, the practice of Restavek, a form of child slavery, is rampant in this area, and these children desperately need intervention.

MAKING A LONG-TERM IMPACT

Forward Edge's Country Director in Haiti, Chavannes Jeune, and Program Coordinator, Fabnise Jean, are leading our efforts to serve the families of this community and address the needs of vulnerable children. To allow for consistent and focused assistance, we are specifically creating partnerships with local churches who are already ministering to the most vulnerable children. In Vernet, we're partnering with Pastor Prenor Coudo and his wife Antonice who lead a community-based ministry for vulnerable children that they call "Kids Club." On a weekly basis, they touch the lives of over 100 children with the Gospel, a healthy meal and other activities to give the children hope. Teams will have the opportunity to come alongside this critical ministry to serve the children and their families, nurture the Restavek children and make a lasting impact on their lives.
